

Strive Gaming has been approved for an Interim Authorization for iGaming and Sports Wagering Manufacturer License by the Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board. This license marks a significant milestone for the company as it expands into one of the hottest markets in the United States.

The approval underscores the company's commitment to providing cutting-edge technology and services while adhering to the highest standards of compliance and integrity. With the PA license, Strive Gaming solidifies its position as a key player in the US iGaming and sports wagering sector, a crucial step in its strategic expansion plans.

This comes on the back of the recent announcement Strive Gaming made in relation to a funding round led by OpenBet that detailed plans to utilize a portion of that funding to secure licenses in all strategically important online casino states in 2024.

Strive Gaming's mission is to deliver an unparalleled, full service omni-channel iGaming platform, catering to the needs of operators. By achieving this key milestone, the company is poised to further enhance its footprint in the North American market and strengthen its partnerships within the industry.

"We are thrilled to receive the Interim Authorization for iGaming and Sports Wagering Manufacturer License in Pennsylvania," said Max Meltzer, CEO at Strive Gaming. "This milestone follows our Michigan state license a few months ago and continues to reflect our dedication to regulatory compliance and our ongoing efforts to deliver a best-in-class iGaming and sports betting PAM (player account management) solution. We look forward to contributing to the vibrant digital landscape of Pennsylvania and providing our award-winning technology in the state."
